A WHIG WANDERS

WEDDING LIFE
MATASOVIC
DANCE PROGRAMS

Well, we went to the wedding. And we had the best time in months and months. Turn to the society columns and find out the details. Lovely bride. Solemn ceremony. Nervous bridegroom. Exquisite breakfast. We're running out of superlatives. It was perfect.

It really was a university wedding, with Bill, Eleanor, Moe Maughan, Timmy Walker, the Corkishes, Caesarini playing important parts. Bill looked as serious as Herbert Hoover after the bonus riots when Eleanor, with the background music of "Here Comes the Bride" came down the aisle. But, boy what a smile when he got a good squint at her. Last spring one of the loveliest Kappas graduated when Doris Sheridan got her B.A. Next June another of their loveliest will walk down the aisle to the accompaniment—this time—of Meyerbeer's "Coronation March."

Do you recall the final paragraphs of "Christmas Carol" when old Scrooge turns over the new year and loves everybody and everything? Well, we can't rival Charles Dickens' way of expressing it, but that's how we felt. You see, we had been chuckling sardonically with the "Mansions of Philosophy."

After eating turkey and chicken all day, we topped it off with a fine goose dinner at Bob Corkish's. One of the high spots of the day. We took several pictures with his five-months-old daughter which we are going to send our relatives, worrying them no little. Corkish is a pharmacy graduate of 1933.

Seen at the store for lunch Monday (among others whom we didn't know): Nick Mariani, Mel Singleton, Timmy Walker, Johnnie Sullivan, Helen Duncan, Stan Shaw, Marge Mumm, Donna Hoover, Prof. Yphantis, Grace Johnson, Eddie Schmoll, Gerald Evans.

Have you seen the new "Life." How Time magazine does everything with that same rapid pace is beyond us. The March of Time announcer has speed in his voice. "Fortune" simply reeks of pace. "Life" puts speed in photographs.

For some reason or other a letter from Robert K. Johnson did not reach us until yesterday. He writes on the double-feature situation, a situation now relieved by the new Wilma program. Thanks, Mr. Johnson, for the letter.

The Montana Standard was mostly right in its all-state selections, but we don't agree on their center choice. We haven't seen this Mines chap play, but Matasovic is generally agreed to be pretty shifty. He should have had the center post.

While he has the chance, we suggest that Doug ask for the state capitol, Mount Sentinel, the Mississippi river, the Metropolltan museum, the Florence excavation, and Hearst's California estate. As far as we are concerned, he can have anything he wants. After next fall, he can have Rockefeller center.

We understand that one sorority gal has a penchant for collecting dance programs. She even tells her friends to get extra programs for her. Then she writes down the names of luminaries like Dr. Simmons, Ray Whitcomb, Chuck Whittingham, Bud LaBar, Cliff Carmody, Howard Fogelson, Swede Lundberg and others. "Why, yes," she says, "I went with the football captain, and the first dance after the opener was with the president of the university. Oh, yes, I danced with the president of the student body and the president of Interfraternity council. The manager of the Union came next." And so forth. Not a bad idea.

Taking our cue from Jack Benny, we will NOT tell who the gal is. Our nose would look all too funny if it were built on pre-operation Jack Dempsey lines.

Music Ensemble Course to Start Winter Quarter

New Cultural Work Is Open to All Students; Professor Crowder Will Direct Studies

New courses in music ensemble will be offered to students next quarter under the direction of John Crowder, professor of music.

The groups may consist of any combination, and two to six members in a group are preferred. The students will be given a definite amount of work to cover during the year, with the material placed in the library for their use. This is to give them an opportunity to become acquainted with their particular field of work.

The course is cultural, rather than technical, and is open to all students. There is no fee charged for music majors who enroll in the course, but all non-music majors will be charged $12 per quarter.

Registration Appointments Are Arranged

Students to Meet Advisers At Designated Hours For Conferences

Special appointment hours for all students except limited registrants have been arranged for winter quarter registration. Students may obtain their appointment cards from the registrar's office today. It is requested that students meet with their advisers today at their designated appointment hours in order to save time for both adviser and advisee. Any change of appointment hour deemed necessary should be reported to the registrar's office as soon as possible.

Student who do not know whether or not they are returning winter quarter are asked to register now in order to overcome disadvantages encountered in late registration. Registration fees for winter quarter will be payable from January 4 to January 7.

Athletic Heads Will Make Up New Schedule

Montana Is Represented By Fessenden, Miller And Badgley

Dr. J. E. Miller, dean of men; Kirk Badgley, athletic manager; and Douglas Fessenden, head football coach, will leave Wednesday for Pasadena, California to attend the Pacific Coast intercollegiate athletic conference on December 7 and 8.

A financial report will be given by the secretary of the managers' association. Reports by the commissioner of officials will be presented.

Health Committee Directs Campus Sales Campaign

Proceeds to Help Replenish Funds Of State Anti-Tuberculosis Association

Turn about is fair play.

That is the opinion—virtually the campaign slogan—of the university health committee as it launches this week an intensive sale of Christmas seals to help replenish the state fund of the Anti-tuberculosis association.

The seal sales on the campus this year have local ramifications. Had not the Anti-tuberculosis association furnished $600 to pay for Mantoux tests and x-ray examinations of positive reactors, the tests might not have been included in the campus health program. For this reason the health committee has taken over the sale of seals on the campus and hopes to show not only a "sizeable contribution to a worthy cause" but an appreciation for assistance already given.

"If any student or faculty member is inclined to ask: 'What do I get out of this?', I'll answer and save the seal salesman the time," Dr. Meredith Hedorffer, resident physician, said yesterday. "The whole Mantoux test program which was inaugurated on the campus last fall was made possible by the Montana Anti-Tuberculosis association. It would have been impossible for the tests to be given and the x-ray examinations made had not the association helped financially."

Yesterday members of the health committee began a personal solicitation of faculty members which they hope will result in a 100 per cent response. At the same time a Christmas seal booth was opened in the Student Union building where students may make their purchases.

"We are not trying to high-pressure the student body but we would appreciate their making purchases on the campus," Dr. G. A. Matson, chairman of the health committee, said. "We are anxious to show the Anti-tuberculosis association through seal sales, that we appreciate the assistance they have rendered to our new health service."

Journalism Building Bids Are in Excess Of Federal Allotment

Construction Negotiations of State Board of Education Hampered by Demands; Lowest Estimate Is $30,000 Higher Than Grant

Negotiations of the State Board of Education in securing bids for construction of the proposed $180,000 journalism building were hampered yesterday upon announcement that the lowest bid, presented by John E. Hightower, Missoula contractor, was $30,000 higher than the federal allotment for construction permitted.

Before the board's consideration of bids may be continued, either a change of the present plans or additional allotment by the PWA will be necessary.

Plans for the building, drawn by Hugenin & DeKay, architects, have been accepted by the board and PWA officials. Should additional PWA allotment be unobtainable, a revision of plans to meet construction bids stated within the present allotment will be made.

Another meeting of the board has been planned for December 14, at which time bids will again be considered relative to any change in allotment which may be made by the PWA.

The present approved plans call for a three story building built in a style similar to that of the forestry, north hall, south hall and natural science buildings, containing a laboratory, library, class rooms, offices and seminar rooms for senior and graduate study.

The application presented by the board last year asked for $180,000 of which amount $81,000 was to be an outright federal grant, the remaining $99,000 a PWA loan retired under the PWA amortization plan, over a period of thirty years.

Legal clearance was given the construction of the building on April 8, after a test suit tried by the Montana Supreme court. At this time, the board was given the right to construct the building under the proposed agreement with the federal government.

Excavation and foundation under contract of Fred Dudley, Great Falls, were completed last week. Letting of bids is the only remaining obstacle to be overcome before construction work on the building proper may begin.

Lutheran Association Will Sponsor Party

The next meeting of the Lutheran Student association on December 6 will be a Christmas party with members exchanging small, unmarked gifts.

Several university students sang and gave talks centering on Thanksgiving at the last meeting.

Mrs. L. E. Tucker entertained 12 members of the football squad and Coach Doug Fessenden at a dinner last night at her home.

Lewis Rash, '29, is now practicing pharmacy in Kalspell. He was formerly employed by a drug store in Whitefish.

Beaux Arts Representatives Will Appear at Convocation

Entertainers Attired in Costumes, Masks to Present Program on Thursday; Additional Features Will Accompany Novelty Numbers

Dressed in costumes and masks, several entertainers for Beaux Arts ball will appear on Thursday's ASMU convocation. Red Jeffrey's orchestra, featuring Billy Smith Rogers, Missoula, will accompany the novelty numbers. Appearing on the program are Kenneth Coughlin, Butte, and Doug Larson, Great Falls, playing popular violin duet numbers; Betty Willcomb, Great Falls, giving a military tap dance, and John Gravelle, Hamilton, singing several vocal solos, accompanied by Red Jeffrey at the Hammond organ.

"The entertainment will be first rate and the costumes clever," said ASUM President Ray Whitcomb, Baldwin Park, California, yesterday. "We anticipate a packed auditorium again Thursday," Whitcomb concluded.

The remainder of the convocation hour will be devoted to singing and learning popular school songs. Slides will be used again to project the words of songs on a large screen placed on the Student Union auditorium stage.

"We want all the students to be so familiar with school songs that Montana will have a campus of singing fools," stated Ray Whitcomb this week.

DO YOUR SHARE

The annual charity ball, sponsored by Missoula civic organizations, will be given in the Gold room on December 8. Proceeds from the affair will go to the community chest to aid social agencies in their work in the city.

Students on this campus are not asked to make substantial contributions to the community chest. At several of the coast schools, students voluntarily contribute large sums of money to charity each year.

The committee in charge of the ball is planning a program which should give a full evening of entertainment to all of those people who attend. If you buy a ticket to the ball you will not only be doing your share toward making the less fortunate members of our community happy, but you will also get your money's worth in enjoyment. Let's show the people of Missoula that we are good citizens by attending the ball on December 8!

RADIO NEWS SERVICE

Broadening the inter-collegiate news service, the Kaimin now has a radio news exchange with the University of Washington at Seattle. A student on the campus is donating his time in obtaining the news which comes to the Kaimin once each week by wireless. In exchange, news of Montana campus activities is sent to the Washington school.

Several news stories from the University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, have appeared in recent issues of the Kaimin.

UNIVERSITY EXPANSION

Announcement of the possible erection of an art museum on the university campus was made last week. It is to be a $32,727 structure, funds being provided by a donation from the Missoula Woman's club and a PWA grant.

Plans include an art gallery, a small auditorium with a seating capacity of between three and four hundred, and three other rooms. It will be a brick, fireproof building, similar in architectural style to the Forestry, Natural Science, North hall, South hall, Corbin hall and the men's gymnasium buildings.

This latest project comes as a surprise to university students. Talk of the journalism plans and the possibility of a chemistry-pharmacy building has been prevalent on the campus for years. The erection of an art museum has never been seriously considered, or even much discussed. Such a project would not have been remotely possible but for the substantial donation which the Missoula Woman's club is offering. This organization is forwarding $18,000 toward the building, in return for which club members will be granted the use of the museum. University students should express their thanks to this group.

The building, which the two grants will make possible, will be a valuable addition to our fast expanding campus.

ASMSU OR ASUM

Recently a communication reached the Kaimin office condoning the fact that the initials ASMSU are now being used in campus news stories rather than ASUM—referring to the associated students.

In part, the writer said, "May I suggest that the name is properly ASUM; it has at least always been this in the past and never been changed. The constitution provides that before the constitution can be amended (and the name is part of the constitution) there must be a vote of at least 500 students and two-thirds of them must favor the proposed change. By inference this would say that the editor and staff of the Kaimin cannot change in any manner our most beloved and respected name, W. C."

Although we feel the point is rather trivial, we can explain our use of the initials ASMSU in the Kaimin. We would refer our readers to the November 26 issue of the Kaimin last year when the subject was first brought to the attention of the student body.

At that time it was pointed out that ASUM was technically incorrect in reference to the associated students. By an act of the state legislature passed during the previous year, the official title of the university was changed from the "University of Montana" to "Montana State University." This change in the official title of the university was brought about as the result of the confusion which was caused by the similarity of the titles "The Greater University of Montana" (of which our university is one unit) and the "University of Montana."

Central board has a committee working on the revision of the associated students constitution and the "ASUM" technical error is one of the many things which has been corrected. The board is now referring to the student association in the minutes of its meetings as "ASMSU."

As long as the official title of the university now reads, "Montana State University" and the student governing body uses this title in its permanent records, the Kaimin staff cannot be too wrong when it refers to the Associated Students of Montana State University as ASMSU.

HUTCHINSON WRITES ON EDUCATION

Robert Maynard Hutchins, young president of the University of Chicago, has decided that present trends in education are toward the wrong goal. In his book, "The Higher Learning in America," published in October, he sets forth a few ideas for remedying the present conditions.

First, Hutchins proposes that freshman and sophomore classes be relegated to junior colleges so that the universities might be left open for more advanced work.

Second, he suggests doing away with all professional training in universities, leaving students to acquire specific knowledge in practical fields from apprenticeship and experience.

Finally, he contends that universities should teach only "the fundamental problems of metaphysics, the social sciences, and natural science."

For a young man, much of the reasoning by Hutchins seems to be quite reactionary. Ever since Harvard university was founded in 1636, the trend in American education has been away from the abstract study of the fundamental problems of metaphysics, the social sciences, the natural science, to the study of practical problems and their application to everyday life.

One suggestion, however, represents a step forward, if one is to think of anything which has the element of novelty as being progressive. That is the elimination of freshman and sophomore classes from the university. It is accepted that most freshman students who enter university life directly after leaving high school are not adequately prepared for the change which they experience. A stepping stone is needed between the high school and the university.

Enrollment in a junior college would provide two more years for the student to mature mentally and physically. In these two years, some of the more elementary courses now offered in universities might be completed.

Given two years to take some of these easier studies and to complete what are now general university requirements for education, the student could, upon entering the university, take up some specialized sort of training.

A final point in favor of the junior college system would undoubtedly be the weeding out of many people who are really incapable of appreciating a university education. A two-year sample of university life would tend to discourage those who are unable to benefit by a college education. Consequently, enrollments would drop off between the junior college and university periods.

That Hutchins is not writing merely for the sake of writing is shown by some of his actions since he became president at Chicago seven years ago. Soon after taking up his duties, he made radical changes in the organization of the university, cutting the number of departments down from 72 to 12. He further offered to let more brilliant students proceed as rapidly as they wish, with less apt students coming along at their relatively slower paces.

If Hutchins is selected to replace Yale university's president, as has been suggested, James Rowland Angell, American educators and students will be given an opportunity to see the effect of youth and new ideas on a staid and conservative university.—Daily Trojan.

Of the 25 editors of the Trinitarian, Trinity university publication, since its first publication date in 1900, only three have become journalists. Others have become teachers, ministers, etc.—McMurray War Whoop.

After 28 years the campus of the Colorado School of Mines will hear the pound of hammers as work begins on the first building to be built since 1908. A PWA grant will make possible the construction of the field house.

A professor in psychology at Northwestern university asked a member of his class to explain "naturalization." After some stuttering and sweating, the student meekly replied, "Naturalization is having no God, no pearls, gates, only nature."

Nobody suggested a beard contest this fall. Maybe that's why we had a successful football season.

Wink Avery, guardian of the university budget and ex-officio Chief Stogie to T. G. Swearingin, has launched upon his unsuspecting charges a Save Our Towels campaign. "This university spends too much on paper towels wasted by ungrateful students," cried Uncle Avery, waving his recently-washed hands in the Heligate breeze. "Save on towels and dry your hands by the Avery method." With which he drew from his vest pocket his own personal pen-wiper and finished the job.

As an extra measure of co-operation, Wink the Wonder has promised to wash only once a week from now on.

DOUBLE DATE: A True Tale

This is the horrific tale of the Callous Maiden and the Young Man With Two Dates on His Hands.

The Callous Maiden began it all. She knew the Young Man already had a date for the Delta Gamma Formal, so she called him up and invited him all over again. He politely but firmly refused. He said he regretted very much she hadn't called him sooner, but that his time was so in demand, etc., etc.

And then the rumor began to get around. The Young Man heard it first from a fraternity brother. Then from another fraternity brother. Then from several fraternity brothers at once. And the rumor was this: that the Callous Maiden was under the impression that he had accepted her offer and was looking forward eagerly to the event.

The Young Man was extremely worried.

"Look," said a fraternity brother, adding the last straw, "her sister asked me and she would have asked me herself if she hadn't been counting on going with you." The Young Man was silent, trothing slightly at the mouth.

And meanwhile the Callous Maiden was packing her trunk for a Visit Home on the very night of the Delta Gamma Formal.

The Young Man grew desperate and urged a fraternity brother to call up the Callous Maiden and square him. Standing out near the phone, he could hear the ethereal voice of the Callous Maiden saying yes, she was counting on going with the Young Man. Suddenly his fraternity brother (who was in the Know) handed him the phone. For twenty silver-tongued minutes he poured forth apology on apology. Finally said the Callous Maiden, "You put me in a very awkward position. I can see nothing to do but give up the Formal and go home."

And with that, the perspiring but relieved Young Man hung up.

Borrowing a tux, he rushed off to dress, only to find that the pants were too long. There was one terrible moment when stiffs seemed the only possible solution. But happily he remembered that he had another friend and from him secured a second pair of trousers. These were too short, but by piecing out his suspenders with binder-wire he managed to make them do.

And he went to his Formal with only one date and nothing on his mind.

At last reports this manager of women was seeking the Callous Maiden for further and personal apologies calculated to reconcile her to her fate.

Thanksgiving week has come and gone And Quarter Tests are coming on!

Members of Delta Delta Delta who went home for the week-end are Helen Williamson, Shelby; Mildred Carlson, Twin Bridges; Jean Kountz, Whitehall, and Helen Erwin, Dillon.

from the Library

Der Reichfuhrer

"Hitler: a Biography" by Konrad Heiden, a German exile, has been added to the open shelf of the university library.

Although the author of the book is an anti-Fascist and an exile, he succeeds in maintaining, in general, an impartial and objective viewpoint in his analysis of Hitler. Heiden's book, which brings the career of the German leader down to June, 1936, is one of the best books that has happened so far about Der Reichfuhrer.

Hitler offered a difficult subject for biographers and one feels that in spite of all the probing he still remains a mystery. Heiden, however, has contributed much to the solution of the mystery and has presented his material in a well-ordered and exceptionally readable style.

Revolutionist Reed

"John Reed: the Making of a Revolutionary" by Granville Hicks and John Stewart is another of the new biographies which has been added to the open shelf of the library.

This is the first biography of the colorful and vivid young American, John Reed, who was born in a wealthy home in Portland, Oregon, died thirty-three years later of typhus in Russia, and was buried beside the wall of the Kremlin in Moscow.

It is the story of his boyhood; his Harvard days; his work on the American Magazine; his experiences in Mexico with Villa's men; his experiences as a correspondent in the World War, and his years in Russia.

It is a fascinating and adventurous career, swiftly and sympathetically narrated. "Mr. Hick's book should get the Pulitzer prize for biography," says the reviewer of this book in the Nation.

Beck, Eleanor Warren, Glendive, and Eleanor Speaker, '36, who is teaching in Craig.

Dinner guests of Alpha Chi Omega Tuesday evening were Dean Mary Elrod Ferguson, Dean and Mrs. R. C. Line and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bennett.

The Delta Delta Delta dinner dance at the Happy Bungalow November 25 was in observance of the forty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the sorority at Boston university. Chaperons were Mrs. Mary Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bischoff, Dean and Mrs. R. C. Line and Mrs. Elizabeth Beckley.

Thanksgiving day dinner guests at the Delta Delta Delta house were Stiles Beckley, Robert Lagrone, Jack Reeves and Gordon Trenary.

Walker-Blaskovich

Eleanor Walker, Los Angeles and William J. Blaskovich, Anaconda, were married at 8 o'clock Thanksgiving morning in St. Peter's church, Anaconda, at a beautiful nuptial high mass, with Rev. Father J. B. Pirnat, the celebrant; Rev. Father Phaley, the deacon, and Rev. Father Kern, sub-deacon.

They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Sheridan of Butte, both state university graduates. William Giltner, '36, gave the bride away. Relatives and close friends attended the wedding, the remainder of the university party being composed of Moe Maughan, ex-'35, and Timmy Walker, a sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Corkish of Anaconda, former university students, also attended.

Masses of greenery and yellow and white blossoms were used in decorating the altar and chancel. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Blaskovich.

The couple left for a short honeymoon in Butte and Great Falls, returning Sunday. Mrs. Blaskovich is a senior in the university and will receive her degree in English in June. Mr. Blaskovich is a senior and also will receive his B.A. in business administration next June. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity and is a former Central board and Interfraternity council member. Mrs. Blaskovich is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Engineers Find Female Rivalry For 'A's' Tough

University of Washington, Seattle, Nov. 30.—(Wireless)—When women become drivers, that is bad. But when they become engineering students, that is worse. So say approximately twelve hundred male engineering students who vie for high grades with five females.

The women are Jean Glebov, senior in civil engineering; Rose Lunn, senior in aeronautics; Helen Poisel and Clarice Atkeson, yearlings in general engineering, and Will Wilcox, third quarter frosh in civil engineering.

Male students find the going tough on all sides. When stumped by a problem or when the drawing pen oozes for that blotch on a certain masterpiece, the men must guard their dignity.

Tau Beta Phi, engineering honorary, honored Miss Lunn at the engineers banquet last Wednesday. She is an "A" student, but the society rules against women members.

When asked why she enrolled in the "hermits" college, Miss Wilcox replied, "what is a girl going to do when she does her best along those lines. Besides I like math and physics."

Melodrammer

"Is My Father In There?"
"No, Keep Away From That Swinging Door"

"Ninth Night," a drama written by "Dusty" Sparrow, Anaconda, and directed by Hans Roffler, Hebron, South Dakota, created more excitement among the foresters than has been seen since the last successful "Ranger's dream" when it was presented to the Forestry club last Wednesday.

Bill Wagner, Missoula, took the part of the child, whimpering into the saloon after her father, played by Casey Streed, Kalspell. Lou Demorest, Chicago, Illinois, was the "young girl"—"and what a beautiful girl he made," said the author, "but I still think Wagner stole the show."

As if this were not enough, student impersonations of Dean Spaulding and Professors Ramskill and Cook left the club in such a badm that most of the members either burned themselves with their coffee or spilled it all.

All members of the 1936 varsity football squad are requested to appear at Ace Woods studio tonight between 8 and 8 o'clock for Sentinel pictures.

The economics club will meet Wednesday at 4 o'clock in the large meeting room of the Student Union building.

Communications

Editor, The Kaimin

Dear Sir:

Concerning the recent move of a certain group to have the University of Montana re-enter the Pacific coast baseball conference I should like to give the opinion of several students.

If the university should enter the conference it will put a heavy financial load on the back of the student body. It will mean the addition of fifty cents to one dollar to the student activity fee. We should not like this. If admission is charged at the games the baseball department would go in the hole. They would not like that.

At any rate, if anything is to be done toward improving the athletic condition of the university why not start a drive to provide for more trained instructors for the physical education department? A recent article in the Kaimin stated this shortage of instructors and equipment very plainly. Why not do something to benefit the whole student body instead of taxing the students in support of the few who are interested in baseball?

When this move is placed before the ASUM for their consent is any student going to think these simple plain facts over?

Yours very truly
JAMES GOODWIN

Editor's Note: This communication did not reach the office in time to be printed in the November 10 issue as requested by Goodwin.

Brilliant Victory Over Sioux Climaxes Successful Season

Montana Team Annexes Sixth Triumph, 13-6

Quality of Opposition Shows True Strength of Grizzly Power And Deception

FIVE CLOSE GRID CAREERS

Whittinghill, Bonawitz, Cosgrove, Olson and Swanson Play Last Varsity Game

Montana settled a 21-year-old score with North Dakota and annexed its sixth win of the season Thanksgiving day to be classed as one of the great teams in Montana's football history. The Grizzlies ambushed the rampant Sioux on the warpath with a 13-6 win in one of the hardest fought struggles ever played on Dornblaser field.

Although the game was played in frigid weather, with fog hanging low on Mount Sentinel, the largest "gate" Montana has known saw the Grizzly rip and tear through the best line they have faced during the current campaign. Considering the quality of the opposition it was the greatest show of power with Grizzly backs driving through Montana has displayed this season, for consistent yardage. Popovich put on another show with his long distance kicking and shifty running. He stood out far above Pollard, whose speed and baffling change of pace had the Grizzlies puzzled on several occasions, but the colored flash lacked the shiftness and hard-running effectiveness to equal the Montana star.

In tribute to four years of hard, persevering effort, Coach Doug Fessenden started Norval Bonawitz at the quarterback position for the first time in his football career. "Bonny" improved all season and he played a swell game, especially on defense. Captain Carl Swanson turned in a smashing game at end and Olson's blocking was a big factor in Montana's power. Whittinghill was injured early in the game and was forced to witness most of his final game from the sidelines. Cosgrove also started his last game in a Montana uniform, double-twisted ankle and all. These five men started playing varsity ball when football was at its lowest and finished in the most successful season the Grizzlies have known since 1914.

The first quarter went scoreless, with Montana passing up a scoring chance when a punt was called on the Sioux 25-yard line on third down. Bill Lazetich set up the first counter in the second period when he ran a stolen North Dakota pass back to the invaders' 20-yard line. "Popo" led the attack right to the pay stripe where Lundberg plunged over. Popovich added the extra point to remain in a tie for scoring honors on the Pacific coast. Earlier in the quarter, Whittinghill's attempted field goal was low.

Pollard furnished the high point of the third quarter when he took Popovich's 40-yard kick back for 49 yards through 11 Grizzlies, with Jenkin cutting him down from behind. Five plays later Jenkin intercepted a Sioux fourth down pass on his own 15 but fumbled on the 19 to give North Dakota another chance for its only score. Pollard and Johnson alternated to place the leather on the one-yard line, where Blanchette plowed across after Pollard had failed to produce. The entire Montana line, with Matasovic leading the charge, broke through to hurry the try for point as the crowd went wild.

The Grizzlies put the game away for keeps when Matasovic grabbed a Nodak toss and ploughed like an army tank to the North Dakota 30. Popovich picked up 12 yards on two tries and Beal added the rest and a touchdown in three attempts. Lazetich dropped "Popo's" pass for the extra point after a fake place kick formation had the Nodaks fooled.

North Dakota sent a great team on the Grizzly hunt—big, fast, rugged and tough, well-coached in fundamentals with savage tackling and outstanding blocking opening and the Grizzlies' defense was in the gates for its clever attack. In M. Gainer the Nodaks had a tackle who belongs with Leonard Noyes in the top flight when tackles are mentioned. C. Gainer and Bjorklund turned in fine performances at the flanks and the guard position was well handled by Amick and Johnson. West, who replaced the injured Mackenroth at center, was one of the best. Pollard was nearly all he was said to be, and

Campbell, Johnson and Blanchette were a good supporting cast. But their best efforts weren't good enough to stop the roaring Grizzlies on the prowl. Great reserve strength enabled Montana to dominate the play throughout. Lazetich played the best game of his first year on the varsity.

Amateur Boxers To Fight in Butte

Newspapers to Sponsor Tourney December 28, 29, 30

Approximately seventy Montana amateur boxers under twenty-one years of age will compete in an amateur boxing tournament to be sponsored December 28, 29 and 30 at the Fox theatre in Butte by the Montana Standard and the Butte Daily Post.

With eight weight divisions from 112 pounds to the heavyweight class, champions in each class will represent Montana at the Diamond Belt tournament in Portland in January. Montana men who are given outstanding ratings in this tournament will be sent to Chicago to the national meet.

In February Montana champions and runners-up will compete against Utah amateurs in an intermountain championship tourney to be held in Butte.

Although the university will not send a team as the minor sports budget does not provide for boxing trips, it is expected that a few university men will enter the competition.

Phil C. Brown, Missoula, who was formerly a student in the school of business administration, is now temporarily employed with the Mountain States Telephone & company. Prior to the Florence hotel fire, Brown was employed as night clerk.

Cleat Prints

Climaxing the greatest season in two decades with a smashing win from the North Dakota Sioux 13-6, Montana Grizzlies have taken off the game equipment for the last time this season. Too much credit cannot be given the best team in the history of the institution. They played big-time ball and deserve big-time applause. And to the coaching staff goes the greatest of triumphs—a winning season.

Behind the scenes of every successful season there is someone in the background who does a great amount of work and gets little or no credit for his efforts. There is one on every football team—the varsity manager. This year the thankless job was taken care of by Woodburn Brown. He is the coach's public relations counsel, catering to the whims, weaknesses and idiosyncrasies of upwards of forty high-strung, well-conditioned athletes. It is his job to see that the players weigh in and out each evening; that they are issued clean for dirty equipment; to check any and all absences; to see that all the field equipment is ready for practice; to keep his many hard-working assistants in line; to break the news of chalk-talks; to pack all the equipment for trips, when the loss of one item cannot be replaced easily and, finally, he is the co-ordinator in the locker room, which is the breeder of all dissension.

This year the job was accomplished better than at any time in the history of Montana football. Always smiling and soothing the players when everything isn't right is a job for more than a hard worker. Brownie did the work so well that even the players liked him, which is something unusual.

One more reason for the crowning season was the excellent care given the players by Trainer Naseby Rhinehart. "Rhiney" has long been an institution on the football team. For three years he was a regular on varsity teams, and last year he took over the duties as trainer for the athletic teams. So proficient has he become on the rubbing tables that players are beginning to ask for a rub on the slightest pretext and "Naze" never refuses. It was his excellent taping, care and rubbing that were responsible for the team's superb condition.

The field is still barren of snow, suggesting a mid-October afternoon. The season is over and December is here, but the weather denies the fact. Some of the practices were miserable, but not once did the team have to revert to the gym for a workout. The writer recalls a season three years ago when the mid-September training practices were snowed out, and the squad went into its first game with little practice. Except for the unfortunate first two games of this season everything has smiled on the squad, including the weatherman. The schedule is over, but there is one thing still in the minds of every Grizzly supporter—the schedule.

The conference meeting will be held soon and Montana will know or can feel from the attitude of the other schools just where it stands. Until then nothing can definitely be done, but they cannot completely ignore a school that is on the upgrade.

Fred Griffin, graduate of the pharmacy school in 1932, is now working for his doctor's degree in the Columbia university pharmacy school in New York City.

There will be no matinee mixer Thursday according to an announcement from the Student Union general office.

Football Numerals Awarded To Twenty-six Cub Gridsters

Sullivan Names Unbeaten Freshman Squad Yearlings To Receive Sweaters; Two Decisive Wins Chalked Up by Future Grizzlies

Playing a brand of football that equaled the Grizzly's home stretch sprint, 26 Cub football players, who smashed a fighting Bobkitten eleven and completely outclassed the Gonzaga Bullpups, have been selected as numeral winners for this year. Coach John Sullivan turned out one of the best freshman teams that Montana has ever seen. Working patiently on varsity opponent's plays week after week, Sullivan had a week to prepare for the Kittens. Held to six points in the first half, Sullivan's men came back strong to run wild and pile up 40 more points.

November 14, Montana busy with Idaho, the Cubs traveled to Spokane. They had spent a week of bruising practice with the varsity. Somewhat depressed because of injuries but determined to show the Bullpups a crippled team could fight, Sullivan's men, spurred by a fighting spirit that would not be broken, waded into the Bullpups and emerged with a 22-0 victory for the second win in two years of competition.

The 26 men must receive passing grades in their work for this quarter to be eligible to receive numerals.

Numeral winners are: Ends, Boffo, Tabaracci, Great Falls; Hoon, Helena; Mitchell, Butte; Chesbro, Raynesford; Malahowski, Chicago, Illinois; and Holliday, Butte. Tackles, Duncan, Billings; Shaffer, Butte; Kelly, Deer Lodge; Narbutas, Chicago, Illinois; and Clawson, Los Angeles, California. Guards, Von Bramer, Billings; Evans, Butte; Tate, Melrose; Buck-

Grizzly Football Team Finishes Year Strong After Weak Beginning

Season's Record of Six Victories Out of Nine Games Played; Montana Has Edge in Yardage Gained Against Opponents

In stamping themselves as one of the greatest teams ever to represent Montana-State university, the 1936 edition got off to an extremely bad start in their first two games. That they could "take" and come back strong is evidenced by the records, with six wins in the following seven starts.

Montana opened the season against the Washington State Cougars at Pullman, September 26. In the starting lineup were seven sophomores and 16 first-year men in reserve. They would not cope with Babe Hollingberry's squad of veterans and All-American Goddard. Except for a flurry of completed passes in the second quarter which had Babe raging on the sidelines, the Grizzlies were on the defensive, with Montana guards the weak spot of the team.

The following Friday in a night game in Los Angeles, Fessenden's men, riddled by injuries and sickness, fell before the UCLA Bruins, 30-0. On October 10, Idaho Southern Branch invaded Dornblaser to strengthen their bid to the Rocky Mountain conference. Popovich was on the sidelines, but his mates had a field day in winning 45-13. The following Saturday an over-confident Gonzaga Bulldogs gave fans the most thrilling game of the season, but failed to score. The Grizzlies scored in the second quarter and then were content to hold their lead.

Against the Bobcats, Montana won 27-0 while playing their poorest football of the season. Except for "Popo's" punt returns, the first team had trouble going any place in particular. The bitterest disappointment for Grizzly fans came when the under-rated Oregon State Beavers emerged victorious, 14-7. The only offensive gesture on Montana's part was Popovich's 102-yard return of a kick-off late in the second quarter. Only 15 Grizzlies saw action in the game.

With Tom Gedgoud back in the lineup to call signals, Grizzlies crushed the Idaho Vandals in a great display of power and deception. Idaho had no chance whatever and were lucky to escape with a 16-0 count. Against San Francisco university, Montana came back in the last half to swamp the Dons 24-7; a hard charging Grizzly line giving the wild passing Dons little chance to get under way. On Thanksgiving day, North Dakota Sioux, champions of the North Central conference and winners of nine previous games, fell before a determined Grizzly onslaught, 13-6.

Available statistics on seven of Montana's games show the Grizzlies picked up 66 first downs to 53 for opponents. In yards from scrimmage, Montana had the edge in rushing, 799 to 641 yards. These figures do not include the UCLA game nor the Idaho Southern Branch romp.

The "M" club will meet Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the men's gym.

Mr. C. H. Lagrand and children, Yvette and Charles, formerly of Le Havre, France, now residents of Missoula, were guests at French club, Tuesday evening, November 24. French games were played and refreshments were served during the evening.

University Rifle Team Tryouts to Be Held Thursday Afternoon

Squad to Compete in Missoula League, Hearst Trophy
And Ninth Corps Area Shooting Matches;
Price Is Selected Captain

All men interested in a position on the university rifle team are requested to report in the ROTC building Thursday afternoon, December 3, at 4 o'clock. Major Norris asks students who are unable to attend at that time to leave their names with him or with Sergeant Peterson.

Byron Price, Laurel, has been appointed captain of this year's team. Last summer Price shot the highest score on course B at Fort George Wright in Spokane, making 236 out of 250. He also attended the national matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, last summer and placed second in the ninth corps area team.

The team last year lost only one match in the local league, composed of the Garden City team, which placed first last year; the university forestry team; Companies A, B, and C at Fort Missoula; and the university women's team. Robert Van Haur, Hilger; Harold Taylor, Troy; Phil Preston, Great Falls, and Robert Dion, Glendive, members of last year's team, are back this year.

The schedule has not been completed but besides competing in the local tournament the team will enter the William Randolph Hearst trophy match and the ninth corps area match. If they place high enough in the latter, they will participate in the national intercollegiate matches. Matches are usually shot in standing, sitting and prone positions.

The team will be composed of fifteen members. Usually the ten highest compete in matches and the highest five count although in some matches all fifteen participate and the ten highest scores are counted.

Dr. Simmons Will Address Science Group

Matson and Ramskill Are Awarded Association
Research Prizes

Dr. George Finlay Simmons, president of the university, will address the general meeting of the Northwest Scientific association at Spokane, December 29. December 30, Dr. Simmons will speak to the Associated Engineers of Spokane at a joint luncheon.

The Northwest Scientific association is one open to membership in all colleges and universities, including governmental investigative departments. It is an association which attempts to encourage research and scientific knowledge and publishes a monthly booklet, Northwest Science.

The American Society for Advancement of Science recently granted the association awards for any commendable research done by its members. This year two of the three awards given were granted to Montana State university professors. Dr. G. Albin Matson, of the bacteriology department, was given an award for aid in the study of the blood groups among the Indians in the Flathead reservation.

J. H. Ramskill, professor of forestry, won his award for the continuation of co-operative study between the Northern Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experimental station of the United States Forest Service and the university forestry school. The study concerned the adaptability of 22 widely scattered geographic strains of pinus ponderosa for planting near Priest River, Idaho. Professor Ramskill's work also included the scientific differences in leaf structures. Both Dr. Matson and Professor Ramskill, recipients of the research grants, will report on the results of their research at the two-day meeting of the scientific association.

W. A. Rookie, retiring president of the association, will address the annual dinner meeting December 29. Sectional meetings will be held during the convention. Dr. Charles W. Waters, professor of botany, will be the chairman in charge of the botany-zoology section and H. T. Gisborne, of the Forest Experimental station, Missoula, will be in charge of the forestry section.

Approximately three hundred fifty members will attend the convention of the association, among them seven members of the university faculty, T. C. Spaulding, dean of the forestry school; I. W. Cook, professor of forestry; J. H. Ramskill, also of the forestry department; President G. F. Simmons; Dr. J. W. Severy, professor of botany; Dr. G. Albin Matson, professor of bacteriology, and Dr. C. W. Waters, professor of botany. T. C. Spaulding is one of the counselors of the association and Dr. C. W. Waters is one of the editors of the Northwest Science, the monthly publication of the society. Dr. Morton J. Elrod, professor of biology on leave of absence, and the late Dr. J. E. Kirkwood, botanist, were largely instrumental in establishing the association at Spokane to better enable members in the northwest, from the universities of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, to attend its meetings.

Freshman Group To Discuss Poets

"Leading Negro Poets of America" will be the subject of a talk by Frances Jensen, Great Falls, next Thursday evening, December 3, at the last meeting of the freshman writing club for this quarter. The work of Amy Lowell, popular American poet, was featured at the meeting of the group Tuesday evening. Each member read and discussed one of her poems. Dr. Lucia B. Mirrieles, faculty advisor, said that material on negro poets can be found on the bottom shelf of case 11 in the reading room of the library.
